A Bargain.

A fine large Building lot on the slopes of Punchbowl graded and terraced, and commanding a beautiful view of Diamond Head and the sea, is offered for sale at a bargain. The place is high and dry, yet not two minutes distance from the Rapid Transit cars. Just the place for a home out of town as far as dust and smoke are concerned, yet within such an easy distance that a man could have plenty of time to go home to lunch.

Anyone interested can have full particulars at this office.

SAY TREASURE
WAS A MYTH

SCHOONER HERMAN RETURNS TO SAN FRANCISCO AFTER AN EVENTFUL CAREER.

The treasure hunting expedition of the schooner Herman has turned out exactly as almost everybody in Honolulu expected. The vessel has abandoned the expedition after the fabulous treasure that Captain James Brown, the master of the vessel claimed to have knowledge of and has returned to San Francisco with the pockets of her backers very thin and Captain Brown's stomach fat with the good things that their money bought him to eat and drink.

The party arrived at San Francisco September 12 from Tahiti after an eventful career, of which the finding of any alleged treasure buried did not form a part. G. W. Sutton, John Chet-wood and Dr. George J. Luce returned on the Mariposa as did Captain Brown.

The men had a story of duplicity to tell against Captain Brown.
G. W. Sutton told of the wanderings of the Herman in the following words to the San Francisco Examiner: "When we left San Francisco all was peace and happiness on board. We were sailing for—we knew not where—but we were content, as we had confidence in our skipper's ability to take us to the island where the treasure was buried.
At Honolulu we had some troubles and two of our party came up here on the steamer Alameda and raised funds from the company here. The schooner then proceeded to Apia, and it was on this voyage that our troubles began.
Captain Brown showed a disposition to be quarrelsome and fought with members of the crew. At Apia the schooner was held up by the American Consul, but we managed to extricate ourselves from the difficulty and left that port.

"We wanted Captain Brown to take us to the island, but he insisted that the stormy season was coming on and that it would be dangerous to cruise in the South Seas. He suggested that we winter at some port and though we objected, we finally gave in and the Herman was headed for Sydney. At Sydney Captain Brown became arbitrary and wanted to abandon the hunt and sell the schooner.

"The American Consul removed him from the command and I was placed in charge of the schooner. He shipped as supercargo, but because he persisted in giving honor to the crew I disrated him. Then the real troubles began; he threatened to kill us on several occasions and attacked members of the crew. We reached the Paumotu group of islands and after patching up a peace asked him where we should head in order to reach the island. He taunted us by telling us of several and in the end would confess that he was joking. He was taken sick and we put in at Penhryn Island.

"From Penhryn we proceeded to Pa-pete, Tahiti, and there Captain Brown absolutely refused to go further with us unless he was given full charge of the schooner.

"I now believe that his story of buried treasure is a fake and his arbitrary conduct was assumed in order to evade taking us to an island which really does not exist. We have spent $25,000 in this expedition and all I have is a good knowledge of the South Seas, which I consider very unromantic."

In telling of his reasons for embarking on the enterprise John Chetwood said: "I only invested in the expedition as a gamble. I had my doubts about the captain's story, but in main I thought he was telling the truth."

"He refused absolutely to give the name or location of the island of the treasure and we relied upon his honesty.
He told us how to equip the schooner, suggesting that we take a smelting plant along in order to melt the plate so that it could not be claimed by any foreign government. He also suggested a launch, stating that we would have to anchor off the island and could not get up the reef in a small boat. I thought his story plausible at the time. I see it in a different light now."

When the Mariposa docked yesterday an attempt was made by Sutton to have Brown under arrest. The Japanese steward was unable to secure a warrant as the Federal courts were closed, and the captain was finally released from custody on board the ship.
Sutton and Chetwood insist that they will have him arrested on Monday as soon as a warrant can be gotten in the Federal courts.

Captain Brown told the story of the burial of the treasure on the island in the South Pacific, stating that he was the sole possessor of the knowledge of the location of the island, as the men who were with him on the expedition are now dead. "I shall organize another expedition," he said. "These men by their conduct, lost an opportunity of becoming wealthy. They might have had millions, but they now come back empty-handed. They shall never know my secret of the location of the treasure. I did not trust them and therefore would not lead them to the spot where the treasure is buried."

Brown claimed that there was $500-000,000 in the treasure. He threatens to institute suit for large amounts against the men who made charges against him.

SMITH—At the San Francisco City and county Hospital, September 21, 1903, of tuberculosis, Charles Smith, only brother of Henry Smith clerk of the Supreme court of Hawaii, and of Mrs. Caroline Clark. He was a native of Hawaii, 45 years of age but had lived for the past twenty-five years in California, visiting the islands only once during that time. Arrangements had been made by his brother Henry Smith to bring him to Honolulu but death intervened. The deceased leaves one son. Some of the older kamaainas will remember the deceased in his younger days when he worked as a tailor with Messrs. Fisher & Roth and later for Mr. L. B. Kerr. Deceased, who was a first class cutter, had worked with several of the prominent tailors on the coast and was given several offers to come to Honolulu and work, but he preferred to stay in a colder climate and has been away from Hawaii for more than a quarter of a century, making only one visit to his home during all that time.

LILIKALANI—In Kona, Hawaii, at 8 o'clock p. m., September 20, 1903, Miss Victoria Kaleikalmann Lili-kalanani, aged 18 years, after an illness of four months. The funeral will probably be held on Wednesday.
E. K. Lilikalanani was notified of her death by wireless telegraph yesterday. Miss Lilikalanani, who was an all, was born in Honolulu in 1885 and when she grew up was sent to school at Kawaihau. She graduated there and later at the Normal School.
Four months ago she was sent to Hawaii for her health. She was a member of Kawaihau church, a Sunday school teacher and a member of the Christian Endeavor Society.
She was a popular and deserving young lady.

WONG—At 12 o'clock last night, at her home 53 Vineyard street, of inflamation of the lungs, Miss Annie Wong, aged 28 years. The funeral will be at 2 p. m. today at the Chinese church, Fort street. The services will be conducted by the pastor of the church. The interment will be at Makiki cemetery. All friends are invited to attend. The mother of the deceased, three brothers and one sister survive her.
